The Clare Burton Memorial Lecture 2012
For Love...

Tuesday 27 November 4 – 5pm, followed by light refreshments

Jane Caro School of Communication Arts, University of Western Sydney
Catherine Fox Deputy Editor of AFR Boss magazine

Coombs Lecture Theatre HC Coombs Building, Fellows Road, ANU

Building on the rich legacy of Clare Burton’s research and advocacy for women in the workforce, Jane Caro and Catherine Fox will bring their own take on the idea of “for love…” As authors of The F Word: How we learnt to swear by feminism, their approach blends decades of experience as workers, mothers and commentators with insights on how it actually feels to confront the confusing signals about being female at work, at home and in our society.

Together they will explore what the idea of ‘doing it all for love’ means to women and their lives, their status and treatment, weaving in perspectives on the latest media trends, the zeitgeist and a sharp skewering of the accepted view of gender relations. They will also track the way beliefs about what drives women and their ‘innate’ abilities overtly and covertly undermines their ability to be given a fair go in the work place.

Jane Caro wears many hats, including author, lecturer, mentor, social commentator, columnist, workshop facilitator, speaker, mum, broadcaster and award-winning advertising writer.

Catherine Fox writes The Australian Financial Review’s weekly Corporate Woman column and is deputy editor of AFR Boss magazine. During a long career at the AFR she has written for and edited a number of sections of the newspaper and won several awards for journalism. She is the co-author of two books and is a regular speaker on workplace and gender issues.

Presented by
Australian Technology Network of Universities Women’s Executive Development program (ATN WEXDEV)
ANU Gender Institute

Registration required
W forlove.eventbrite.com
E martina.fechner@anu.edu.au

This seminar is free and open to the public
ANU Gender Institute information: genderinstitute.anu.edu.au

CRICOS 00120C