Visiting Fellows programme

PGGC welcomes applications for Visiting Fellowships from scholars whose research focuses on gender issues as related to globalisation, development, and international governance. We are particularly interested in scholars working in the following areas from a feminist and international perspective: agriculture and rural development, international organisations and social movements, reproductive health and rights, conflict and security, and migration. Proposals focusing on other international/global issues from a gender perspective will also be considered.

Visiting Fellows hold a Ph.D. and are looking for a conducive environment to develop their research. Time of affiliation is variable but limited to one year maximum. They receive access to the Graduate Institute library and are provided with an office space. They are expected to actively participate in the PGGC intellectual community, write a working paper to be published in the PGGC series, present their work at the Gender Seminar Series, and attend PGGC events. They acknowledge PGGC in all scientific output produced while in residence.

PGGC receives applications twice a year, at the beginning of October for fellowships starting during the next Spring semester (i.e. mid-February to mid-September), and at the beginning of March for fellowships starting during the next Fall semester (i.e. mid-September to mid-February).

Applicants should fill out the Visiting Programme form and send it, together with all requested documents, to: visiting[at]graduateinstitute.ch

The application deadline for the fall semester of 2014 is March 15, 2014.
