Abstract:

Eight public health and legal researchers and activists from Cambodia, China, Indonesia, the Philippines and Thailand will present the results of their work during a six week residency at ANU supported by the AusAID Australian Leadership Awards (ALA) Fellowships program. The residency focused on enhancing expertise and collaborations to bridge the research-policy divide in the areas of medical tourism, domestic violence, human and animal disease transmission, reproductive health, health emergencies, and child and maternal health.

During the six weeks the Fellows developed policy briefs based on their research and action plans for implementing them, along with case studies of previous research translation experiences. The seminar will highlight lessons learned in the program and key messages from the policy briefs. For more information see <http://i2s.anu.edu.au/courses/bridging-the-research-policy-divide>.

At the end of the seminar the Fellows will be presented with certificates marking their successful completion of the program.
